

June 2024

This month's update will be brief. The PurpleAir monitors are busy collecting data throughout the Valley. However, collecting the data is the easier part. There's far more complexity involved in analyzing the data and making sense of what we're seeing. At this time, we do not have any additional preliminary findings that we are confident sharing with you. So, we'll keep working on the analysis as the monitors fill up our data files. We hope to have something interesting to report next month.

Meanwhile, enjoy these summer days, stay cool, and breathe easy!