

Welcome to Lehigh Valley Breathes October 2024 Update!

As we come to the end of what will be the driest month on record in the Lehigh Valley, the monitors for Lehigh Valley Breathes just keep chugging away collecting data on the levels of Particulate Matter (PM) 2.5. There is nothing of significance to report from the past month for the project. The focus right now is to keep the monitors maintained and functional in order to add to the project's rapidly expanding dataset.

We'll see you next month and, in the meantime, let's hope for rain. Breathe easy!
